

Americans do not realize that the airwaves are ours and free and unrestricted access to the airwaves depends on government intervention and regulation. This is one area where the free market cannot be allowed to control, without some guidance and adherence to constitutional principles.